Is this list up to date? From the tribal section of the website.

EPA officials have made many visits to engage with Alaska tribes since launching our watershed assessment - including twenty five visits to twelve villages and additional meetings in Alaska, Seattle, and Washington D.C.

We invited all Bristol Bay tribal governments to participate in tribal consultation, and we're available to meet with tribes and tribal groups that would like information on the assessment.

Representatives from tribes and Alaska Native organizations we've connected with at meetings or by phone include:

- Alaska Peninsula Corporation
- Aleknagik Village
- Bristol Bay Native Corporation
